WINTER 2021/22.

Warth-Schröcken

Breath of the mountains

WELCOME!

We look forward to welcoming you in Warth-Schröcken! Here are two small mountain villages at an altitude of 1,200 to 1,500 meters that do not even have 400 inhabitants when put together. Even 700 years after the Walser people settled in the Swiss canton of Valais, their charm can still be felt. Warth-Schröcken has remained traditional and modest, but it is modern enough to guarantee exciting different activities.

This brochure provides useful information and tips for your vacation in Warth-Schröcken. Naturally, our local tourist offices are also happy to provide you with advice and practical help.

We wish you a wonderful vacation!

WARTH-SCHRÖCKEN

Two former mountain farming villages in step with the rhythm of the mountains.

WARTH

Warth am Arlberg - panoramic perch with boundless charm.

Idyllically nestled at 1,500 m above sea level in the midst of an impressive mountain panorama, the village of Warth is where the Walser people chose to settle as early as the 14th century.

By 1894, a man from Warth had made a name for himself with a pioneering achievement: He was Pastor Johann Müller, the first person in this area to travel on skis.

The considerable amount of snow gave the parson the idea of using long wooden slats, which he ordered from Sweden, for his journeys to the neighbouring resort of Lech.

With the construction of the first ski lifts in the mid-1960s and the expansion of federal highways, tourism experienced a steady upswing that continues to this day. Despite good tourist development, the charming Walser character of the former mountain farming village has been preserved.

Together with Hochkrumbach, 168 people live in Warth all year round. Nine existing hotels are mostly family businesses, which are now operated by second and third generations.

SCHRÖCKEN

Schröcken - extensive hilltop settlement with a magnificent mountain backdrop, settled in the Walser style.

Schröcken is characterised by its extremely varied landscape, whereby the place retains the typical character of a Walser community with widely scattered hamlets and individual farms. The place name Schröcken (Middle High German “schrecken” for “to burst”, “to split”) is associated with the rugged mountain landscape, whereby the former name “Giersboden” after Walserian “Gir” for bird of prey prevailed until 1640.

The site experienced a pioneering achievement by Alfons Strolz, who had the first tow lift built in 1953. In 1964, he founded the Schröcken ski lifts.

The Hochtannbergstrasse road expansion in 1954 was another milestone in tourism development.

Today 210 people live in Schröcken all year round, most of whom are represented in one of the many community associations. The scattered settlement, divided into nine parcels (= districts) in Schröcken, is typical of a Walser community. Located on slopes and plateaus, the community is divided from the Unterboden district at 1,150 meters up to the natural jewel Körbersee lake at 1,660 meters above sea level.

Accommodations in Schröcken range from cosy, comfortable holiday apartments and B & B arrangements to hotels with half-board and luxury chalets.

SKI HISTORY

Warth-Schröcken's ski history started in the 19th century, when pastor Johann Müller was the first to ski the route from Warth to Lech and back in the deeply snow-covered terrain. He is proudly counted among the first ski pioneers on the Arlberg.*

DIFFICULT STARTING POINT.

The Walser people, who populated the Tannberg region (Warth, Schröcken and Lech), had a meagre and hard life as mountain farmers. Until the beginning of the 20th century, they lived exclusively from dairy farming and cattle breeding. Well-developed access roads were out of the question at the time. Places could only be reached via mule tracks or cart trails. Especially in the rough winters, places were sometimes cut off from each other and the surrounding valleys for weeks.

FIRST BEGINNINGS OF WINTER TRAFFIC.

It can be said the beginnings of winter tourism were due to the steady increase of guests during summer months.

This made it possible for the “Widderstein Inn” in Nesslegg to open at the beginning of 1900 in addition to the already existing “Zum Ochsen Inn” (today’s “Tannberg Inn” in Schröcken). In Warth, guests found lodging in the parsonage, “Tirolerhof” and “Adler Inn”. Construction of the “Biberkopf Hotel”, which opened in 1928, set new standards, because the installation of central heating meant that winter guests could be comfortably accommodated for the first time.

FOUNDING THE FIRST SKI SCHOOLS AND CONSTRUCTING THE FIRST SKI LIFTS.

Another milestone in Wart-Schröcken's tourism development was the establishment of the first ski schools. Warth Ski School was founded by Otto Fritz in 1926 and Schröcken-Körbersee Ski School (today Schröcken Snow Sports School) by Fritz Strolz in 1936. During the Second World War and introduction of the Thousand Mark Ban, tourism in Warth-Schröcken came almost to a complete standstill. Tourism was reawakened and further investments in the infrastructure began years later. It wasn't until 1954 that the first ski lift was built in Warth and other lifts followed. In 1963, the Warth ski lifts and Schröcken ski lift company were founded as construction of the Saloberkopf and Sonnenkopf lifts began.

MILESTONES OF THE SKI REGION DEVELOPMENT.

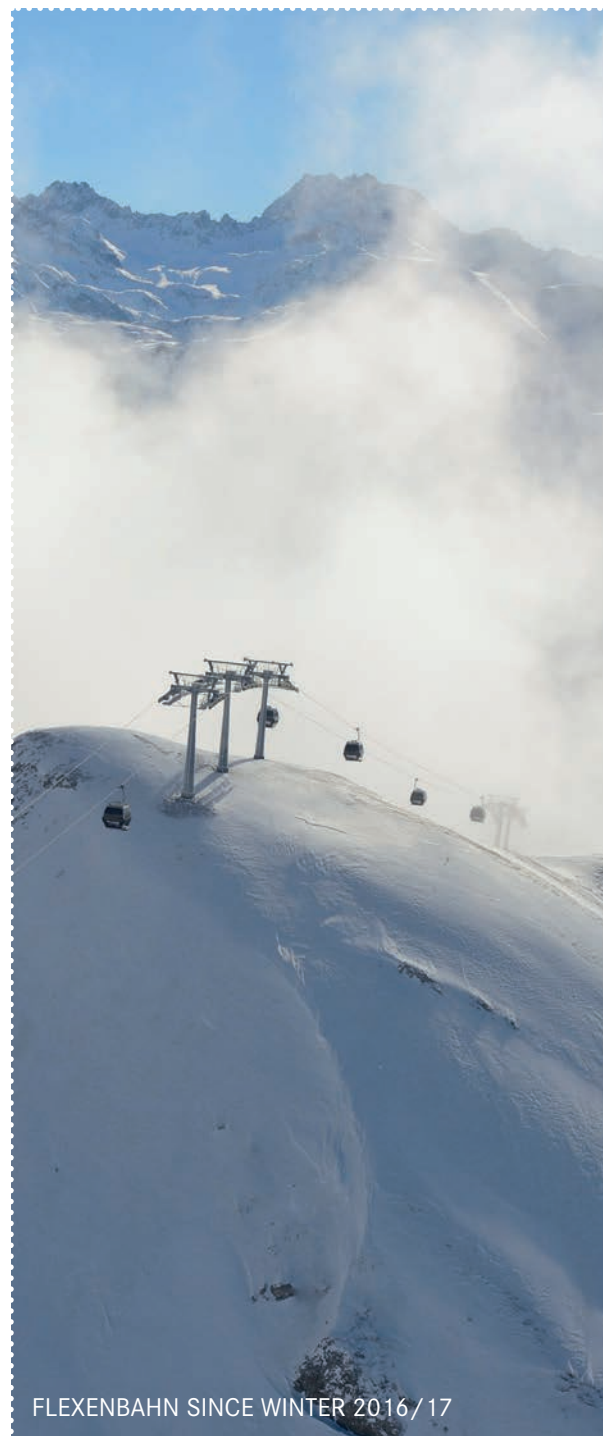

At the end of the 1970s, the connection from Warth to Schröcken was realised, and the resulting ski area “Warth-Salober” became the third largest ski area in Vorarlberg. In the winter of 2013/14, the most important milestone in Warth-Schröcken’s history of skiing was achieved: After 41 long years of discussion, the connection to the Arlberg was made by the Auenfeldjet cable car. In the winter of 2016/17, the last gap on the Arlberg was closed with the new Flexenbahn aerial cableway, so ambitious skiers can reach all places on the Arlberg on skis in just one day. In December 2017, the Warth village railway connecting the village centre to the ski area was brought into operation.

WARTH-SCHRÖCKEN TODAY.

The historical and touristic development with all its implemented milestones has paved the way to Warth-Schröcken becoming a modern and sporty ski area today. Now the “Ski Arlberg” ski resort is not only the largest connected ski area in Austria, but also one of the five largest in the world. With 305 kilometres of downhill skiing, 200 kilometres of deep snow as well as 88 lifts and cable cars, the ambitious skier has a new dimension of winter sports fun on the Arlberg.

* You can find the full story of Pastor Müller and the Warth ski history in the book “Secrets of White Art - The History of skiing in Warth” (Geheimnisse der weißen Kunst - Skigeschichte Warth). Further historical information about the communities of Warth and Schröcken can be found in the community chronicle.
